Re: NPRM # FCC 99-6, MM Docket # 99-25 & #95-25:

I urge you to adopt rules for licensing Low Power FM radio that prioritize the needs of under-served and under-financed communities. Your office has the power and the mandate to ensure that ordinary people can claim a piece of the pie that big corporations have dominated and controlled for years.

I am confident you agree that broad citizen access to information and culture is at the heart of a democratic society. To support this vision, urge you to legalize microradio with the following concerns in mind:
I

1. There should be completely non-commercial service. The current radio spectrum is dominated by commercial media. LPFM licenses should go to non-commercial community groups who want to use radio to communicate to the constituents and their neighbors, not to make a profit.

2. Licenses should be held locally, be non-transferable, affordable to all communities, easy to apply for and limited to one per license holder;

they should NOT be businesses.

3. Power levels should be up to 100 watts in urban areas and up to 250 watts in rural areas.

4. NO secondary status should be allowed.

No. of Copies rec'd 2
List A B C D E

5. Microbroadcast pioneers who have suffered government seizure and fines should receive amnesty, have their property returned, and be prioritized for new licenses.

6. Problems, technical or otherwise, should be referred to the local voluntary micropower organization for assistance or mediation (e.g. the Ham radio model). The FCC should be the forum of last resort.

7. LPFM must be included in the future of digital radio.

8. If the FCC intends to license some commercial stations, they must be licensed last. In this instance, there should be a 2 year "headstart" for non-commercial licenses. The right of citizens to communicate is protected by the Constitution and the FCC's mandate. The right to make money through local radio is not a protection under the FCC's mandate. Thank you for your time and your consideration of these vital issues.

Sincerely,

James L. Connor

Discrimination occurs when the civil

THE ENORMOUS GROWTH OF SOFT MONEY

Even though soft money has only been around since 1978, and not really exploited until 1988, the problem is getting worse by the minute. Soft money exploded from $86 million in the 1992 election to $260 million in 1996, and it could well triple again to $750 million for the presidential campaign in the year 2000. It is not wild speculation, but reflects the dynamic of a process that, like an arms race, is subject to constant escalation in the demand for money.

That is why Congress must ban soft money - now - before it overwhelms our campaign finance laws and our political process.

Washington is a city full of powerful industry lobbies, but the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) seems to wield more power than most.

Be it protecting its members from competition by the cable industry, or pushing for less government regulation,

the NAB is perceived as a forceful and skillful advocate of its members* legislative priorities. And it is one of the few lobbies that can outgun even powerful politicians. In 1996, for example, then-Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole (R-KS) stood virtually alone when he questioned

the wisdom of giving broadcasters $70 billion in additional spectrum for digital TV. Outside the Beltway, Dole*s opinion prevailed, supported by both conservative and liberal editorial writers, free-market economists and media

reformers. But in Congress, little opposition surfaced.

The
industry*s allies from both sides of the aisle rushed to
the

No. of Copies rec'd 2
List A B C D E

defense of broadcasters.

When the broadcasters prevailed, and Congress did not seek to auction off this valuable spectrum, Senator

John

McCain (R-AZ) observed:

here

I congratulate the broadcasters and their surrogates in the Senate and the Congress. I congratulate them on prevailing. I congratulate them for their incredible influence that has prevented us from mandating an auction of the spectrum which belongs to the taxpayers.

first

NAB's ability to influence Congress spans more than 70 years. The lobby, which was founded in 1922, got its legislation

victory in 1927, with the passage of the first attempting to regulate the new medium of radio.

As historian Robert W. McChesney observed:

educators

The NAB and commercial broadcasters were instrumental in getting the legislation passed;

and nonprofit broadcasters, on the other hand, played almost no role in its drafting.

essentially

NAB's fundamental success, McChesney writes, was getting government to consider broadcasting as than an industry in the business of making a profit, rather a medium primarily to be used for education.

TV

That influence seems only to have increased as the industry has grown. With 7,500 members and annual revenues of more than $35 million,³ NAB represents 85 percent of network-owned and affiliated commercial TV stations, and 40 percent of all independent and public stations in the United States.

NAB represents many small-market broadcasters, but its membership roster also includes media giants. For example, its TV board of directors includes the president,

broadcast executives: Peggy Binzel, senior vice government relations for Rupert Murdoch's News Corp Ltd.; Martin Franks, senior vice president, Washington, for the CBS Television Station Group; Dennis FitzSimons, executive vice president of Tribune Broadcasting Co.; and Robert Okun, vice president, Washington, for NBC.

When NAB felt threatened in 1996 by the prospect of congressional hearings on the broadcast spectrum issue, invested $2 million or more in what NAB president Edward Fritts termed an "educational" campaign. Running

it

TV ads in markets around the country, the broadcasters sought to scare viewers into thinking that Congress would impose a "tax" on TV. The campaign was deemed successful by NAB officials. NAB vice president for government relations James May said the spots "were extremely helpful in bringing the public into this debate."

So was the fact that TV stations are an important and powerful presence in every congressional district in

the country. As NAB President Edward Fritts told members in 1995: "No one has more sway with Members of Congress than the local broadcaster."

The basic landmark agreement between commercial television and the established in the Communications Act of 1934 and has become the unifying thread of all telecommunications laws since then. The basic agreement was actually established in the years before.

This important law established basic philosophical principles:

1. The airways are public property.
2. Commerical broadcasters are liscensed use the airways.
3. The main condition for use will be whether the broadcaster served "the public interest, convenience,

Status: Much of this law remains unenforced because the FCC has yet to establish guidelines for "public

Re: Low Power FM Radio, NPRM #FCC 99-6, MM Docket #99-25 & #95-25

Ladies, Gentlemen:

I want to support the idea that low power FM radio stations should be locally owned, non-commercial, and licensed FIRST to community and other local groups. Low power radio should be dedicated as much as possible to serving a variety of local voices, and licenses should be designed to make that process as easy as possible.

As I understand the present debate, the objectives I described above can best be achieved by implementing the following ideas:

- 1) Low power radio licenses should be noncommercial, since otherwise the money from existing commercial stations will be used to buy out community interests. If the FCC should decide to issue some commercial licenses, their priority and rights should be secondary to those of non-commercial stations (regardless of the amount of money and power commercial owners commit to them).
- 2) Only one station per owner.
- 3) Low power should mean low power -- 100 watts max for urban broadcasts, and 250 or so for rural stations. My understanding is that this is plenty to serve a local audience, and lower power means a greater diversity of stations available to the listener.

The present "state of radio" leaves a lot to be desired. Stations from one city to another -- Seattle and Portland, Oregon in my most recent experience -- sound very similar, play the same music, news and ads, even report traffic in the same way at the same time. Often I hear the same announcers. Clearly they are owned and managed by large, remote corporations; nothing could be further from local opinions and diverse voices.

The radio spectrum should be a public resource, used to express public needs and arrive at public solutions. I think that returning low power, diverse, non-commercial stations to the air will be a step in the right direction.

Thank you for listening.

Meet John McCain

He was shot down over Vietnam and held as a Prisoner of War for 5-1/2 years.

His then wife was a member of the National League of Families and she fought to make sure that John McCain came home.

No. of Copies rec'd 2
List A B C D E

John McCain claims that he was "broken" by the Vietnamese, yet he was accorded Soviet Surgeons to tend his wounds received in the shoot down of his aircraft, something not accorded other PoWs.

He was shot down 26 October 1967, and by 9 November 1967 he was giving interviews to foreign correspondents providing information on his prior command, casualties and tactics in direct violation of the Code of Conduct.

He was one of the lucky PoWs that came home.

The Communist Vietnamese erected a bust of John McCain inside Vietnam. His defenders say that it is in tribute to the PAVN gunners that shot him down. When was the last time you visited a memorial to the American Military where there was a bust of the enemy?

In the May 14, 1973 edition of U.S. News & World Report, under the byline of "Inside Story, How The POW's Fought Back," the author details how John McCain told the guard to "Call the Officer" and then he told the officer, 'The Bug,' " a psychotic torturer, one of the worst fiends we had to deal with." "Take me to the hospital and I will give you military information." The author of this article? John McCain!

Yet in the interview that he gave on 9 Nov 1967 to VNA International, he claims that when he bailed out and landed in the lake, people grabbed him out of the lake and took him to the hospital.

He stayed in the Navy to retire at the rank of captain.

He repaid his wife's loyalty by divorcing her when she became an invalid, and she still remains loyal! We have to wonder if she and Mary Jo Buttafuoco are friends.

He went on to become a United States Congressman and then a United States Senator.

He has consistently been an advocate of lenient treatment of Vietnam, even though their Prime Minister is responsible for the executions of at least three American PoWs during the war.

While a member of the Senate Select Committee on PoW/MIA Affairs (1991-1993) he consistently referred to PoW/MIA Family Members and PoW/MIA Activists as whiners and vultures and the lunatic fringe.

While a member of the Senate Select Committee on PoW/MIA Affairs, he reduced a family member, a sister of a missing serviceman, who had come to testify before the Committee to tears berating her for holding on to false hope and being a cog in the wheel of progress.

After this incident, also testifying before the Senate Select Committee was the man McCain claims was responsible for his own torture, McCain's interrogator, "The Bug". The moment of confrontation came and McCain rose from his seat and walked from the podium onto the floor of the chamber to stand face to face with the man who was responsible for torturing Prisoners of War. McCain grabbed the man and embraced him.

Although the Senate Select Committee concluded that we left men behind, McCain crossed party lines to help lead the charge toward lifting the embargo and toward normalizing with Vietnam.

He disregarded testimony from professional analysts that stated that Vietnam was not cooperating and he often berated their analysis.

He ignored a letter drafted by one of the most brutally tortured PoWs, Capt. Eugene "Red" McDaniel and co-signed by FIFTY former PoWs which asked that we not lift the embargo and not normalize relations and McCain pushed for the lifting of the embargo and toward normalization.

Although only 8 remains were repatriated between the time the embargo was lifted to the time that Clinton signed the normalization order, McCain did all the talk shows using his status as a former PoW to push normalization down the throats of the American Public.

When the Missing Service Personnel Act of 1996 came on the Senate Floor for debate, Senator McCain called this bill "un-necessary" and "burdensome" even though the MSPA was sponsored by the then majority leader and the man who had considered asking John McCain to run with him, Sen. Bob Dole.

McCain has successfully mounted an attack, amending the MSPA by removing criminal liability and several articles of the MSPA that are important to PoW/MIA Family Members.

McCain stated his reason for amending the MSPA of 1996 is because "...General's do not have time to worry about Sergeants or Lieutenants."

He denied knowledge of his own amendment when he was approached by family member Carol Hrdlicka, who ended up chasing him into the Senate Elevator screaming at him that he was a "Traitor!" He pushed passed several other family members, actually knocking one of them to the floor!

Although President Clinton signed into Law a bill that called for the Department of Defense to give to Congress a comprehensive review of all MIAs on a case-by-case analysis, and although the Department of Defense has been in flagrant disregard of that law, Senator McCain makes excuses for the bureaucrats instead of demanding answers on behalf of the family members.

Let's not forget that he was one of the Keating Five.

At the recent senate hearing on the confirmation of an US Envoy to Vietnam, he greeted a family member by referring to him as, "Scumbag!", while that family member was seated next to the female head of a national PoW/MIA family organization. Talk about conduct unbecoming. . .

He is willing to disregard how the majority of family members and virtually all of the veterans organizations feel about normalizing with Communist Vietnam in favor of those businesses that see Vietnam as a "viable market."

He is at it again, writing a "Dear Colleague" letter asking fellow Senator's not to co-sponsor Senate Bill 755 which would restore the provisions to the MSPA that he removed. At the time he wrote his Dear Colleague letter, there were only 12 co-sponsor's of S 755. So our question is why? Why did he feel compelled to write this letter?

He states that he speaks for the families and yet he disregards everything requested of him by the very families that he claims to represent.

He had the unmitigated gall to speak at PoW/MIA Recognition Day ceremonies in Washington DC September 19, 1997 although both the National Alliance of Families and the Korea-Cold War Association requested that he be replaced with a speaker more sympathetic to the families.

To View What these two organizations had to say, click on their names.

National Alliance of Families
Korea-Cold War Association

John McCain is incapable of loyalty. He has demonstrated it time and again. He demonstrated it when he adandoned the woman who helped make sure he would be released.

He demonstrated it when he berated a family member and then hugged the man responsible for the torture of McCain and the brutal torture McCain's fellow Prisoners of War.

He demonstrated it by pushing the lifting of the embargo and normalization disregarding the fact that the Vietnamese have not been forthcoming with their war time records to help bring the answers as to what happened to the PoWs that were in their custody.

He demonstrated it when he decided that the desires of big business outweighed the only recourse that Family members had--the only carrot to hold out to the Vietnamese.

He demonstrated it when he stifled the MSPA on the floor of the Senate even though it was sponsored by his own party and the man who may ask him to be part of the Cabinet.

He demonstrated it by introducing an ammendment to scuttle the effectiveness of this very same bill.

John McCain does not care if there is even one American left alive and being held against his/her will. McCain does the bidding of big business and big business comes before what he has to understand is a living hell.

Could it be that the Vietnamese have a bust of John McCain in Vietnam not as a tribute to the PAVN gunners that shot him down, but to a "progressive thinker"?

See what the Vietnamese termed as Progressive Thinkers while discussing the numbers of PoWs that they held in 1972.
